1. For questions where candidates must write their answers, do not award the mark if the answer is incomplete, or if there is additional information that is irrelevant or shifts the focus of the answer. However, accept other words with the same meaning as the correct answers in the markscheme.
2. Accept spelling and grammatical mistakes provided they do not change the meaning of the answer.
3. For questions where candidates choose an answer from options, if two answers are given – one in the box and one outside – only mark the answer inside the box.
4. Words inside brackets in this markscheme are optional: candidates may include these words in their answer, but they are not essential for the mark to be awarded. If there is more than one possible answer to a question, these answers are indicated by a slash (/).
5. This markscheme must be read in conjunction with the Marking Instructions for the relevant component on IBIS.

1. En ce qui concerne les questions pour lesquelles les candidats doivent rédiger leurs réponses, n'attribuez pas le point si la réponse est incomplète, ou s'il y a des informations supplémentaires qui ne sont pas pertinentes ou qui modifient l'objet de la réponse attendue. Néanmoins, l'utilisation de mots ayant le même sens que les bonnes réponses est acceptée dans le barème de notation.
2. Les erreurs d'orthographe et de grammaire sont acceptées si elles ne changent pas le sens de la réponse.
3. En ce qui concerne les questions pour lesquelles les candidats doivent choisir une réponse parmi plusieurs propositions, s'ils ont donné deux réponses différentes, l'une à l'intérieur de la case et l'autre en-dehors, ne prenez en compte que la réponse qui se situe dans la case.
4. Les mots entre parenthèses dans ce barème de notation sont facultatifs : les candidats peuvent les inclure dans leur réponse, mais ils ne sont pas essentiels pour justifier l'attribution du point. S'il y a plus d'une réponse possible à une question, celles-ci sont indiquées par une barre oblique (/).
5. Ce barème de notation est à lire parallèlement aux instructions de notation disponibles sur IBIS pour la composante concernée.

1. En las preguntas en las que los alumnos deban responder por escrito, no otorgue la puntuación si la respuesta está incompleta, o si aportan detalles adicionales que cambian el enfoque o no son pertinentes. No obstante, acepte otras palabras con el mismo significado que las respuestas correctas en el esquema de calificación.
2. Acepte los errores de ortografía y gramática, siempre y cuando no modifiquen el significado de la respuesta.
3. En las preguntas en las que los alumnos deban elegir una opción, si se han escrito dos respuestas (una dentro de la casilla y la otra fuera), puntúe únicamente la que esté dentro de la casilla.
4. Las palabras entre corchetes en este esquema de calificación son opcionales: los alumnos pueden incluirlas en la respuesta, pero no son fundamentales para que se otorgue la puntuación. Si hay más de una respuesta posible a una pregunta, esto se indica con una barra (/).
5. Este esquema de calificación debe leerse junto con las instrucciones para la corrección del componente en cuestión disponibles en IBIS.

You are going to hear a radio interview with Rachel Andrews about green energy from global and local points of view.

Presenter	Good morning, listeners! Today I'm in an English town centre with Dr Rachel Andrews, a consultant from a green energy company. So, why is this important, Rachel?
Rachel	Well, the United Nations believes we should all be able to access clean and low-cost energy. But this has yet to happen even though renewable energy can be generated everywhere. Surprisingly, it is also usually the cheapest option. Renewable energy is also flexible because modern batteries can store power for up to five days for when there is no wind or sun.
Presenter	What can we do?
Rachel	Governments have the money and ability to start more renewable energy projects and they often do. This is good because the United Nations says governments must triple their spending to achieve its clean energy goal by 2050. But another important contribution comes from communities. Even in small towns, you find people with relevant expertise. Here, for example, we have accountants, engineers and fundraisers who are happy to give their time.
Presenter	Now let's walk up to Longley Farm.
Presenter	So, why here?
Rachel	Well, Longley Farm is a great example of a community project. As you can see on this leaflet, the farm has used wind power since 1986. When the original turbine – the machine that generates the power – needed to be replaced in 2015, Longley Farm and the town came together to buy a new one. The Farm uses the electricity from the turbine but extra electricity is sold, and the profit goes to the Green Trust - which offers grants to local projects that benefit the environment. The Trust also uses the money to advise schools on how to reduce their water usage.
Presenter	That's a great project! Thank you, Rachel!

You are going to hear a conversation between Rob and his mother about photography.

Mother	Hi Rob.
Rob	Hi Mum. I'm looking at photos on social media from Roger's holiday, but everything he's posted looks so posed and fake. It's so boring.
Mother	Isn't that what we like these days?
Rob	It's like they aren't allowed to post genuine photos without filters or editing.
Mother	Well, it's just so easy to take first-rate photos on a smartphone now.
Rob	That's true, and the quality of the cameras just keeps improving so editing is becoming even easier. But spending too much time scrolling through all those edited photos can make people feel down!
Mother	Really? Even knowing they've been edited? You know, it used to be a real artform to take good photos – for example, it required creativity and patience to take pictures with an SLR camera. That's the one with settings and various lenses.
Rob	It can't be that difficult. Do people still use them?
Mother	Well, because people are bored with fake images online, they want to explore taking authentic photos with a proper camera. In fact, just yesterday I saw an advert for a photography course in town. So, it's an activity that's still in demand!
Rob	Really? What are they going to study?
Mother	Let me find the advert.

Mother	Here it is. Look, there's even an exhibition at the end!
Rob	Wow! When does it start?
Mother	Next week, and it looks very thorough. They'll cover settings and the use of different lenses. Then, they move to different styles like wildlife and still life photography.
Rob	I guess I'd have to learn how to use different lenses, but wildlife photography? I'd love to try that .
Mother	You know, I took a photography class at university. But it was more challenging because we also had to develop our photos, which involved a dark room and chemicals! But the hardest aspect was being patient because you couldn't see your photos until after you'd developed them.
Rob	I'm going to register for the class.

Mother	Great idea! Photography not only helps people develop self-expression but, through learning a new skill, they can also gain more confidence. That happened to me.
Rob	And, I can participate in the exhibition! The advert says the course is at the local college, but the final show will take place at city hall and have prizes. I can't wait to enter!

You are going to hear a presentation about ways to bring the older and younger generations together.

Presenter	Hi everyone. Thanks for coming to this presentation on how your town can promote contact between generations. I didn't expect such a big crowd! You may know, the problem of people feeling alone is now a global trend. One contributing factor to this is aging societies. An aging society is one where the average age is rising because people are living longer and having fewer children. This population shift combined with people spending so much time online is reducing chances for different age groups to mix, and it can have negative effects. For example, a lack of both understanding and trust can develop between generations.
Presenter	One way this can be addressed is through multigenerational living, wherein an older person shares their home with a young person, usually a student or recent graduate. This benefits young people as they pay less than they would living alone, and it's often possible to further reduce their rent by helping the elderly person with tasks. This has obvious benefits for the elderly, but the best aspect of this arrangement is that older people are engaged rather than being alone all the time. However, it's not recommended that the young person take on the role of carer for the elderly person, as this can demand a lot of time that students may lack, especially during exam time. So that is something to consider.
Presenter	Now, let's look at another option for intergenerational contact, as shown in the next slide.

Presenter	Now, having childcare centres in care homes is not a new concept. In fact, the first care home to do this was started in Japan, in 1976. Many countries have since utilized this model, including the UK and Singapore. There are benefits for both elderly residents and children. Elderly people tend to be healthier and have better mental functioning. More importantly, they gain an enhanced sense of purpose and enjoy chatting and laughing with others. For children, they develop their social skills and levels of maturity. At the same time, they become more dependable. Staff also plan many activities that both groups enjoy, such as singing and playing instruments, or parties. There is also spontaneous contact. For example, children often like dropping in for lunch with their elderly friends or exchanging notes with them.
Presenter	However, there are considerations to opening this type of care home. Firstly, a large investment is needed for set-up. In addition, government rules can make it harder to start new integrated centres. Such centres require flexibility that might not comply with the rules.
Presenter	So, I hope this information helps you make the right choices for your town.
